

Care Certificate Training

For Managers, and others with responsibility for induction

The new Care Certificate was introduced across health and social care in April of this year. The Care Certificate have been welcomed by CQC who have stated that “those who employ health care support workers and adult social care workers should be able to demonstrate that staff have, or are working towards, the skills set out in the Care Certificate, as the benchmark for staff induction”.

We know Managers of adult care services are concerned about the new Care Certificate and many have asked us for help to understand the changes more fully – and in particular the observation and assessment of staff undertaking the certificate.

We are working in partnership with Leading Lives to deliver this training across the sector. The full course is delivered over a one half day session and a further full day session and is available in three different locations in Suffolk. For details of course dates and venues, and for instructions on how to book a place, please turn over.
